YOUTH ACTIVITY REPORT/RESEARCH

2025

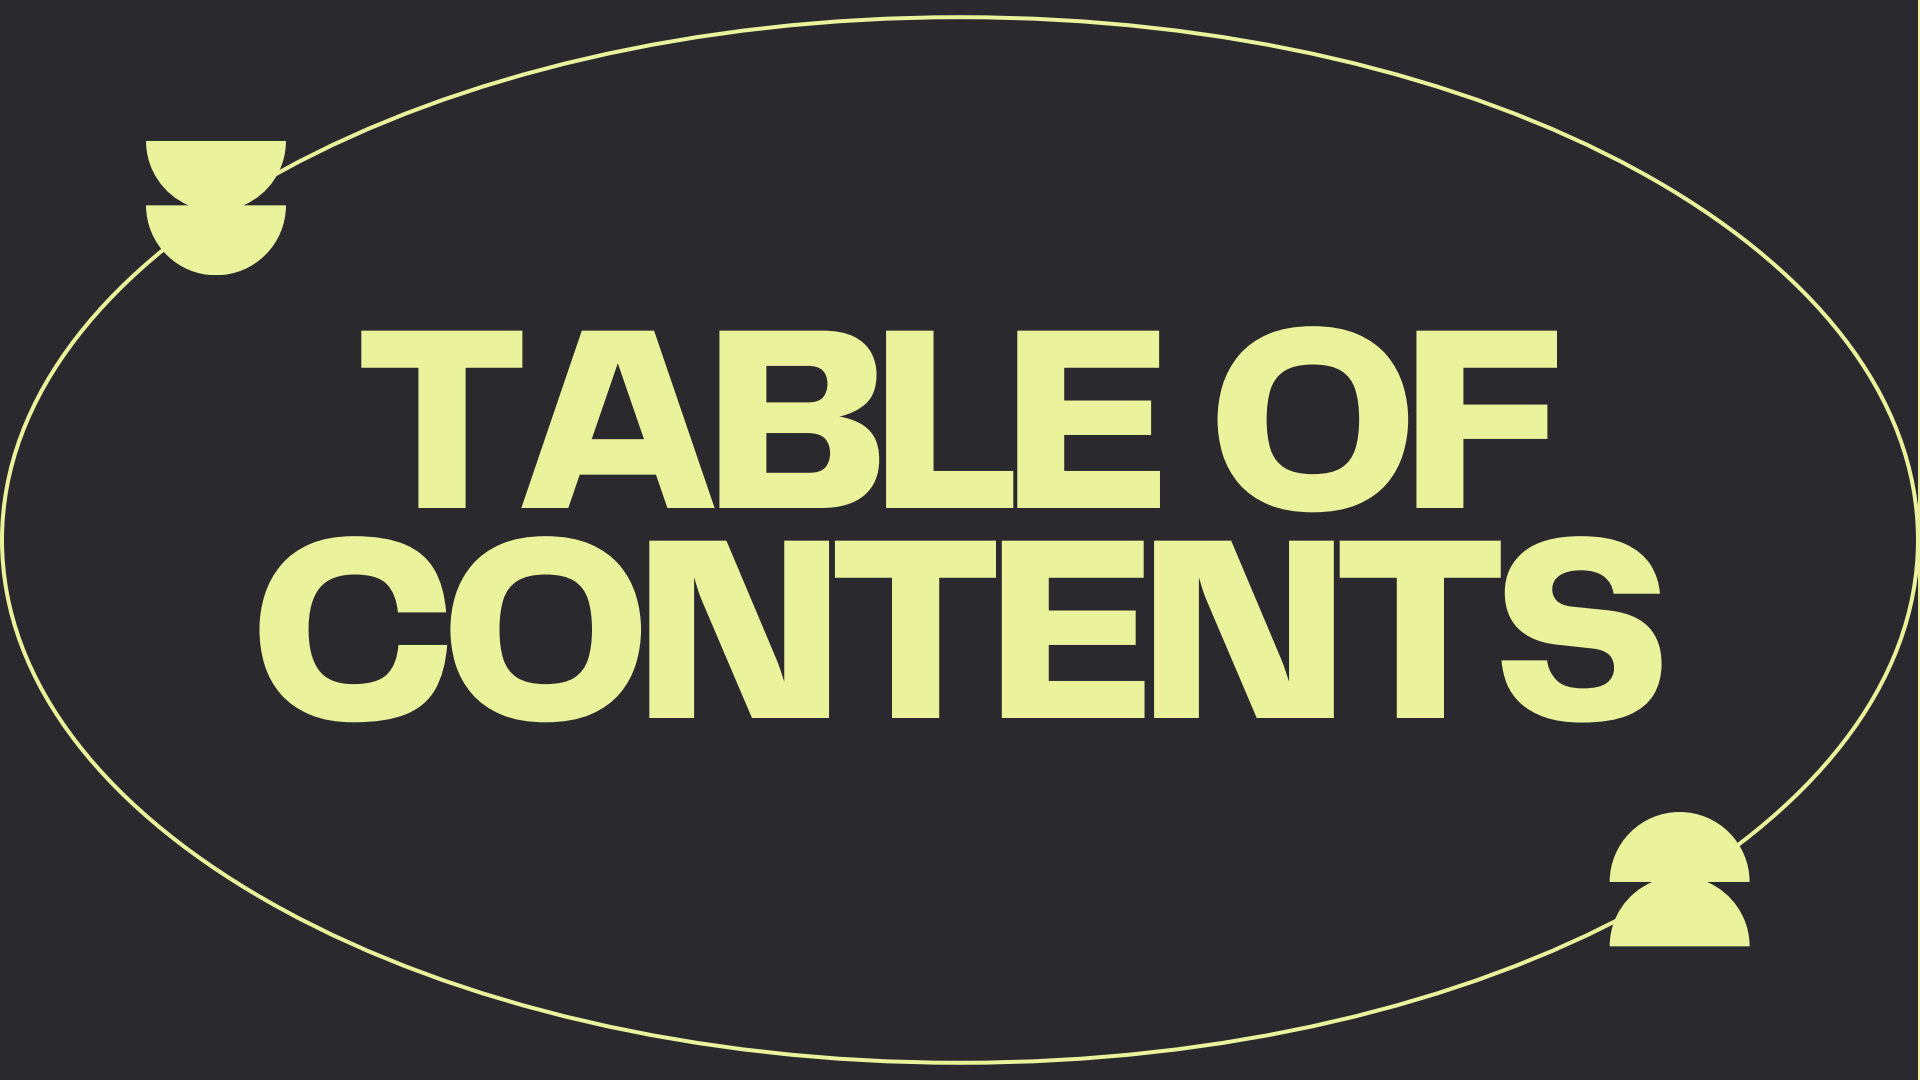

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1. Youth Activity and Volunteering in Armenia
2. Despite common beliefs that Armenian youth are passive, recent research and community initiatives show that young people in Armenia are increasingly active and engaged. According to the Youth Study Armenia (Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung, 2023), nearly 16% of Armenian youth participated in volunteer work during the past year, often through NGOs, universities, and youth organizations.
3. Groups such as ASA NGO, International Center for Youth Cooperation Armenia (ICYC), Armenian FIOH future in our hands ngo provide platforms for young people to volunteer, develop leadership skills, and participate in civic and environmental projects. Many of these programs also connect Armenian youth with international networks, promoting intercultural learning and social responsibility.

INTRODUCTION

Research from Yerevan State University highlights that civic participation among youth is steadily growing, especially in post-war and regional development contexts. Projects like Youth for Community Development and UNICEF's regional youth centers empower adolescents to take initiative in their local communities.

OVERALL

Overall, Armenian youth are proving to be active, creative, and socially conscious, challenging stereotypes of apathy. Through volunteering, advocacy, and innovation, they are playing a vital role in shaping Armenia's future
